Technical Description Reflection

The technical description of AirPods demonstrates the functions of the AirPods and their everyday use. The purpose of using AirPods is that everyone either owns AirPods for themselves or has come across them, meaning that they have had previous experience before but do not know the specific process that is being performed during the use of AirPods. My hope is to make my audience acknowledge what is occurring when they are using their AirPods. In this case, my audience is my almighty professor and some students who peer-reviewed my drafts before the final draft. During this technical description, I have improved source use and developed and engaged in the collaborative and social aspects of the writing processes.
